Dear Madam,

The public prosecutor has informed the victims' service of the facts of which your son was the victim. He has opened a file on these events and an investigation is underway.

You may have questions about this investigation or need support during the proceedings. For this reason, the public prosecutor has asked us to contact you. After all, it is the task of the victim reception service to inform you, to assist you and possibly refer you to another service during the procedure.

If you wish, we can make an appointment so that I can clarify the procedure and answer your questions about it.

However, you may not know at this time whether you wish to take up our offer. However, I remain at your disposal. You can also contact our service later.

Kind regards,

Margot Vantrappen

I know it is rather short notice, but if you wish I can schedule an appointment with you tomorrow? Is this possible for you?

Kind regards,
Margot
